

Tunijaunningit suliatsak sivukkatingit

Transfer of project leadership

It has been a privilege to work together on this project for nine years. This is our final report, as leadership has been transferred to the Nunatsiavut Government at their request. For questions about future directions, the current status of the project, or access to the data, please contact the Nunatsiavut Government's Lands and Natural Resources Department.

While there are certain gaps in the current monitoring project (around Postville, for example) and some sample sizes could be increased for specific animals, this report still provides baselines against which to compare future plastic monitoring.

This reports and other material created by this research team throughout the project's life are available on the CLEAR website: <https://civiclaboratory.nl/plastic-pollution-monitoring-in-nunatsiavut/>.

Surface water training in Holyrood, NL, with Liz Pijogge, Kaitlyn Hawkins, Max Liboiron, and Kayla Wyatt, 2019.
Photo by Liz Pijogge.

